The people only would have benefited by a greater New York. Hence yesterday's legislative action.

Suzen's Bryant Park bill will not particularly benefit him. Ambition should be made of sterner stuff.

Want's terrible hand rests upon the poor of Queensland. Monarchy is indeed not government for the people.

Comptroller Myrick's stand against the Huckleberry Railroad franchise give-away is independent and intelligent.

If, as Mr. BYRNE says, Jack the Ripper is in Auburn, how can he be in Australia, and if he is in Australia, how can he be at Auburn?

The Garza "revolution" is now said to have been run in the interest of coffee and land speculators. These are the days of side-shows.

Society women of Otsego, Mich., are blacking boots and grinding hand-organs in the streets to raise money for a library association. This seems to be Otsego society's time to shine.

Miss HARRIET L. McCARTIE, tall, blonde and beautiful, has been appointed type-writer in ordinary to Clerk McMCILIN, of the Board of Education. Another applicant for the place was not so good to her. Bishop POWELL wants to note that beauty got its work in this time again.

Tam Robber PRYME keeps them busy teaching at Lyons-fall. Now they have found save in his ed and wad of money minus clothes, and where he got every thing the officers don't know. It would have saved the Sheriff and his turkeys some sleepless nights and restless days if the clever fellow had succeeded in running off with that Centaurine.

The Ladies' Auxiliary Committee for Bishop WARDEN of the Post Graduate Hospital is working for a big end and in its effort to secure $200,000 to build and equip an annex where young children may receive such treatment as cannot be given in the city hospitals in their present crowded condition.

AS TO AMBULANCE SURGEONS.

It is not true that the ambulance surgeons of New York are as a body, unskillful, inconsiderate, brutal or ignorant. There are among them men who are efficient in training, careful in methods, cool in judgment and impressed with the responsibilities, often vital, of their positions. But there have been cases where the corps of surgeons left them plainly open to charges of gross inefficiency, or worse, and the number of such instances on record is unfortunately great enough to justify a feeling of suspicion on the part of the public which undoubtedly does injustice to some truly conscientious men.

The Coroner's jury has just censured a young surgeon who dismembered a woman with a fractured skull, which subsequently proved fatal, and as it was shown that the unfortunate invalid was continued by some of the hospital staff at Bellevue, the jury went on to make a sweeping condemnation of "the practice of hospitals of having young and inexperienced doctors" in charge of their wards. While there is, perhaps, good ground for some censure of this character, the sweeping nature of the jury's verdict is undoubtedly due to the feeling of general suspicion engendered by the unfortunate case previously referred to.

Conceding with the news of this finding comes a complaint against another young ambulance surgeon. He is accused of brutally treating a woman who had been knocked down and run over by a wagon, of refusing to take her to a hospital when her condition plainly demanded it; of being impudent and officious to an older physician who pointed out to him what subsequently proved to be true that the woman was suffering from a broken rib.

The accused surgeon makes a general denial and says the woman refused to go to a hospital. He is disputed by other witnesses. His case should be rigidly investigated and impartial findings made public. And further, as a step towards reforming the ambulance service, both in the interests of the people and as matter of justice to the surgeons who are faithful, it should become the established rule that all men in the service shall be held to strict responsibility as to the cases in which they are called and as to their conduct therein. There is a calling in which, least of all, make-shift and hasty judgment and professional incapacity should be tolerated.
